TWO YEARS SUSPENSION FOR TEACHER

A DISGRACED teacher who asked one of his teenage pupils if they wanted “to make babies” has been suspended for a minimum of two years.

Frank de Groot, formerly of Rainham Mark Grammar School, received a prohibition order in a hearing with the General Teaching Council (GTC) on Friday, October 8.

Mr de Groot, who taught at the school for six months, faced four allegations of unacceptable professional conduct relating to incidents that occurred in 2007.

In January of that year, he was alleged to have made an inappropriate ate comment to an unnamed year 10 pupil that included the words, “do you want to make babies?”

The hearing also heard how, later that month, he threw a board marker at another year 10 student.

Following this, he was alleged to have used inappropriate language to his year 11 students that included profanities such as “fk” and “p*d off.”

The former politics, business and economics teacher was also accused of disclosing private information from a meeting with the head that contained confidentialities relating to a pupil.

Mr de Groot, who did not attend the hearing, had previously admitted to the latter three charges during the school’s internal investigation, but denied making the inappropriate comment.

This was rejected by the GTC however, who described evidence against him as being “consistent and credible.”

The Committee added: “Your absence from the hearing has made it impossible for us to formulate appropriate and practical conditions to impose on your registration. Nor were the Committee able to assess your willingness to respond positively to retraining and professional guidance.”

Family murder trial continues with new jury

■ BY JOE BILL

A COURT case involving a family of four charged with murdering a close relative has been restarted with a new jury.

The Jack Treeby trial was adjourned at Maidstone Crown Court late last week after the original 12-person jury was discharged for legal reasons.

On Monday the trial was due to continue but once again proceedings ground to a halt after one of the new jury members fell ill.

Bill Treeby, 50, his wife Charity, 51, and their sons Billy, 29, and George, 23, all deny murdering Jack Treeby, from Rainham.

Mr Treeby, 43, died after he was run over by a car.

His brother Gary Treeby was also allegedly shot with a shotgun before being badly beaten with an iron bar.

Complexities

In the opening exchanges last week, Judge Andrew Patience QC warned that the complexities of the case could cause the proceedings to last for up to nine weeks.

More than 25 witnesses, including other members of the Treeby family, police and neighbours, are due to be called to the stand.

Gary Treeby has recovered from his horrific injuries and is expected to take the stand in court as will a number of witnesses of the crimes, which were partially caught on CCTV.

There are also audio tracks from a neighbour's home CCTV camera to be used as evidence.

The sound of gunshots being fired and vehicles colliding in the road was captured.

The four accused, from Queen Street, Paddock Wood, also face charges of attempted murder of the deceased's son, Jack Treeby Jnr.

DECEASED: 43-year-old Jack Treeby

A further charge of conspiracy to kill another family member, John Treeby, is also levelled at the family.

During the evening of December 27, 2009, a Range Rover drove into Quarry Road and smashed into a number of vehicles including that of the deceased, Jack Treeby.

It is believed that Jack Treeby was then chased down the street, run over and crushed by the Range Rover.

The Range Rover in question was found burnt out in a field with the remains of a shotgun inside. There were also shotgun cartridges found at the scene of the crime.

Speaking shortly after her husband Jack's death, Karen Treeby said: "He did not deserve what happened to him. I feel like my heart has been ripped open."

"We have been robbed of a wonderful, caring man who will live in our hearts forever."

The trial continues.

Woman charged with damaging parked cars

A TEENAGE woman has been charged with criminal damage following a series of incidents in Rainham.

Tasha Bright, 18, of Solomon Road has also been charged with assaulting a police officer.

On Saturday, August 14, eight cars parked in Station Road and Solomon Road had their windscreens smashed, wing mirrors broken and windscreen wipers snapped.

The doorway to the Railway Tavern pub was also damaged.

The total damage was estimated at more than £1,000.

Bright has been released on bail and is due to appear at Medway Magistrates Court on Friday, October 22.

Thief guilty of stealing bathroom taps at store

SHOPLIFTER Paul Philip Raworth has been sentenced after stealing £51 of bath taps from a Chatham superstore.

The 42-year-old, of St Williams Way, Rochester, took the taps from Wickes on Thursday, September 30.

He went before Medway Magistrates Court on Saturday, October 2, where he pleaded guilty to theft.

He was sentenced to 42 days in prison, suspended for 12 months.

Missing man found by police in London park

A MAN who last made contact with his family more than two weeks ago has been found safe and well.

Louis Handley-Benjamin, 33, from Rochester, called his family from a payphone in London on Monday, September 20, before disappearing.

He was spotted by the Metropolitan police at a park in the capital at 2.30pm last Thursday.

Punished for driving without insurance

MOTORIST David Burke has been ordered to pay £200 after being caught driving without insurance.

The 48-year-old, of Ross Street, Rochester, was stopped by police in New Road, Rochester, on Saturday, July 17. He was driving a Ford without third-party insurance.

Burke pleaded guilty at Medway Magistrates Court on October 1.

He had his licence endorsed with six points, was fined £185 and ordered to pay £15 costs.

Con artist stole £39,000 from state

A BENEFITS cheat who raked in nearly £39,000 of taxpayers' money after posing as a jobless single parent has been handed a six-month suspended prison sentence.

Brian Lane told Medway Council he lived with his son in Bligh Way, Strood, received no maintenance from his wife and had no contact with her.

The 46-year-old's circumstances allowed him to claim income support, housing benefit and council tax aid over a two-year period.

However, Department for Work and Pensions officers found Lane was living at the Strood address with his wife, Kim, who was in full-time employment.

The benefits cheat was sentenced at Maidstone Crown Court on Wednesday, October 6, after pleading guilty to five charges of fraud and four offences of failing to give notice of a change in his circumstances at an earlier hearing.

The court heard that by the time Lane's scam was uncovered he had duped taxpayers out of £15,860 in income support, £20,480 in housing benefit and £2,644 in council tax.

John Hurlock, defending, said Lane had a drink problem that meant he could not work and had drink-drive convictions but was receiving treatment for his addiction.

He said: "The money has been spent on alcohol, paying for the family and clearing family debts, rather than being lavished on luxuries."

On sentencing, Judge Griffiths-Jones suspended a 26-week jail term saying he would give Lane a further chance in view of his remorse and guilty plea.

Lane was also ordered to complete 150 hours of community service and undergo 12 months supervision, maintain a night curfew from 8pm until 6am for three months, which would be monitored an electronic tag, and repay the money.

Medway Council's finance boss Alan Jarrett said: "We are determined to stop people defrauding the tax payers of Medway. The reality is that every member of society is a victim of such offending."

Dad speaks up for sons denied speech therapy

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

YOUNGSTERS at a special needs school have gone more than one month without the vital daily speech therapy sessions they are legally entitled to.

Pupils at the Evergreen Centre of Warren Wood Primary School, Rochester, last received the expert speech therapy they require at the end of the last academic year in July.

The teacher left in the summer and has yet to be replaced.

Parents Jenny and Darren Shaw, whose two sons attend the school, feel their boys' futures are being jeopardised by the LEA stalling over finding a replacement.

Mr Shaw, 38, an advertising contractor, said: "I think the school have been badly let down. All we want is for the children to get the treatment they have been promised by the Local Education Authority (LEA).

"The Primary Care Trust (PCT) has severely failed my children and probably hundreds of others across Medway. They should be ashamed."

Mr and Mrs Shaw have written letters to both the LEA and NHS Medway to try and rectify the situation. But despite the boy's legal requirements, stating their need for daily intensive speech therapy, the complaints have continued to fall on deaf ears.

Darren Shaw, eight, and brother

Kieran, four, suffer from verbal dyspraxia, a learning difficulty that affects brain messages being actively transmitted to the body. As a result they have great difficulty speaking.

Mrs Shaw, 40, said: "The stress of the situation has made me unwell. I eventually had to see a doctor and was diagnosed with depression. I do not mind people knowing that.

"We just want to the children to be shown the respect they deserve. It is them that are being let down by the LEA and the PCT"

The children have not received any speech and language therapy sessions so far this academic year - which began in September.

Liz Bailey, head of children's services at Medway Community Healthcare, which provides speech and language therapy in the area, said the problem had been rectified.

"We have recruited a speech and language therapist for Warren Wood and she will be joining the staff in December, after serving out her notice at her current job," she said.

"In the meantime, we are seeking to recruit a temporary speech and language therapist to deliver input for the children and to support staff at the unit.

"Not all the children at the unit require direct one-to-one input from a therapist. This is a specialist unit with staff who are skilled in working with children who have a language disorder."

LET DOWN: (l-r) Kieran Shaw and brother Darren have had no speech therapy lessons since their teacher left the Evergreen Centre in July

Illegal scrap metal merchant ordered to cough up £500

AN UNLICENSED scrap metal merchant has been ordered to pay more than £500 after running his waste collection firm without the necessary documentation.

Matthew Wright of Woolwich Close, Chatham, was stopped by Medway council's environmental enforcement team in Whitewall Road, Strood, in February as part of an ongoing crackdown on illegal waste carriers.

The 27-year-old, driving a van with the signage 'M Wright and Son Recycling', was found to have been operating the company without a waste carriers licence.

Wright was issued with a £300 fine, reduced to £180 had it been paid within 10 days. When the illegal scrap metal merchant failed to pay he was invited to attend an interview under caution but also failed to respond.

A case was then prepared against him, which revealed Wright had been illegally handling scrap metal since at least September 2009.

He appeared at Medway Magistrates Court on Monday, September 27, where he pleaded guilty to failing to produce authority to transport waste under the Control of Pollution Act 1989.

He was fined £300 and ordered to pay £200 costs and a £15 victim surcharge.

Medway Council's community safety and enforcement chief Mike O'Brien said: "Waste licences are not bureaucratic red tape but an essential part of the council's armoury in dealing with fly-tipping and other environmental crime.

"They are in place to help to councils keep tabs on where waste ends up and to take appropriate action if that place is at the side of the road or dumped down an alley.

"Prosecutions like this send out a strong message that the council will pursue through the courts those who flout the law and put Medway's environment at risk."

'We abhor this type of behaviour'

"In the light of those considerations, the Committee therefore decided that they have no alternative, but to make a prohibition order.

"The period after which you may apply for restoration of eligibility to register is a minimum of two years."

These comments were also backed by a spokesperson from Medway Council who added: "We absolutely abhor this type of behaviour and can confirm this teacher was dismissed by the school's governing body.

"We are committed to ensuring that every child gets the best possible education and is free from any kind of physical or verbal intimidation.

"We fully support the General Teaching Council's decision to make a prohibition order in this case."

As a result of the order Mr de Groot is now prohibited from teaching in state schools for two years. Should he wish to resume his career after this period he will have to reapply to the teaching register.

Police failed to spot knife in man's back

KENT Police have been criticised after investigating officers failed to spot a man had been stabbed in the back.

Antonie Denis, 66 (pictured), was found dead in his Chatham flat in January, but officers on scene declared there was no sign of any crime being committed.

It was only when undertakers arrived to remove the body of the father-of-four that the blunder was uncovered, leading to criticism from Medway coroner Roger Sykes, who confirmed that Mr Denis had died from a single stab wound to his lung.

He added: "In the process of the undertaker's preparation it was discovered there was some blood and indeed a knife, and at that stage investigating officers attended.

"It is always unsatisfactory when I conclude an inquest when the full circumstances have not been revealed.

"It appeared the police officers found him on the floor and thought it was not suspicious. But they clearly didn't examine the body thoroughly."

The inquest heard a concerned neighbour visited Mr Denis as he had not seen him since December. He found the door open but could not find anyone in the property.

He called the police, who discovered the retired painter and decorator on the bedroom floor. However, it was not until the undertaker's appearance that the stabbing was unearthed.

Speaking to the Daily Mail, Detective Constable Linda Robb said: "Because of the flat being dark and him lying on his back there was no outward sign of anything untoward."

The mistake led to an internal investigation in April, resulting in one officer receiving a verbal warning.

Police arrested and charged Chatham-based Kim Albane with the murder, but she was released after a Crown Prosecution Service decision.

Detective Chief Inspector Dave Chewter has appealed for anyone with information to come forward.

He said: "We are appealing for information in relation to the murder of Antoine Denis and would particularly like to hear from anyone who saw him in Chatham before January 9."

'Respected' ex-teacher escapes prison over drink drive smash

A FORMER school teacher's alcohol reading was a massive four and half times above the drink-drive limit when she crashed into a taxi.

Denise Heward drove on ignoring police calls to stop until she noticed their blue flashing lights.

The 53-year-old former Hundred of Hoo biology teacher admitted drink driving at Canterbury Magistrates Court.

Teresa Ruiz, prosecuting, said Heward crashed into the taxi in Hollow Lane, Wincheap, and drove on to a Morrisons superstore where she did some shopping.

The driver reported the crash and gave out her number. As she drove her silver Peugeot back along Hollow Lane she was spotted by a patrol.

■ BY IAN READ

Mrs Ruiz said: "She appeared in distress and unsteady on her feet. She was covering her mouth with her hands. After the reading was taken it was 163 microgrammes of alcohol in 100 millilitres of breath-the legal limit is 35. "She told officers she'd been drinking wine the previous night and had a couple of glasses while she was in Canterbury."

David Nelson, defending, said Heward had never been in trouble before.

He said: "Her consumption of alcohol was an emotional crutch. It causes her immense shame to be here and embarrassment at appearing in the local newspapers - some people say she should."

"She was a respected teacher who retired early with her husband to travel. Sadly that dream wasn't realised as her husband had a major heart attack and was in a London hospital at the time."

Mr Nelson said Heward was "confused" when she drove off.

He said: "There is no point in sending a 53-year-old lady who previously led a blameless life to prison. The effect on her and her husband would be devastating. You will never see this lady before a court again."

Chairman of the Bench Jane Jones said: "You drove oblivious to what was around you especially at time when children were coming out of school - goodness knows what could have happened. Your reading was off the scale."

Heward was given a 180-day prison sentence suspended for a year, a 12-month supervision order to include alcohol treatment, 200 hours community work and banned from driving for four years.

Did you witness raid on bookies?

POLICE have made a renewed appeal for information following an armed robbery at a Strood bookmakers.

The Gun Lane Coral branch was targeted by two hooded men at 8pm on Wednesday, September 29.

The robbers, armed with a handgun, demanded cash from two female cashiers and left on foot with around £370.

Both men had their faces covered with hooded tops and scarves.

Detective Inspector Ann Lisseman said: "We are still keen to hear from anyone with information about this robbery."

"We work closely alongside all of the bookmakers in Medway and have their support in our investigation."

"The two women are obviously shaken by what has happened, but fortunately no one was injured during the incident."

"The amounts of money available to cashiers are minimal so there really is little gain that can be made from offences such as this."

Anyone with information is asked to call the police on 01634 792474 or email amet.medway@kent.pnn.police.uk.

DRUGS DEN SHUT DOWN

A suspected drug dealing den has been boarded up after magistrates rubber-stamped a closure notice.

Police applied for the authority to shut the Hartington Street premises after residents complained about a rise in anti-social behaviour and disorder.

A warrant was carried out at the Chatham address on Tuesday, October 5 where a closure and eviction notice was issued to the tenant of the property.

A 51-year-old woman was also arrested on suspicion of possession of heroin, a class A drug. She was released on bail until Wednesday, November 10.

Drugs liaison officer PC Bryan Ward said: "We've received a number of complaints about suspected drug dealing and anti-social behaviour in relation to this house in Hartington Street."

"We are pleased to have been able to put an end to the illegal activity at the address and restore the quality of life and safety of local residents."

"I would like to thank the community for their support in helping to close this house. It has now been boarded up and will no longer be occupied by anyone involved in this incident."

Area's roads among country's safest

MEDWAY'S roads are among the safest in the country, according to a Government report from the Department of Transport.

The report shows seven people were killed and a further 66 seriously injured as a result of road traffic accidents in 2009, placing the area seventh out of 69 authorities in the UK.

Statistics from the report entitled, Road Casualties Great Britain 2009, also show that a further 750 people received slight injuries due to accidents on Medway's roads.

Medway council's front line services boss Phil Filmer said: "A top 10 position is a great achievement however the hard work doesn't stop here; we are not complacent."

"We will carry on supporting our road users with expert advice, school education, innovative campaigns and various engineering measures to reduce the number of people hurt in tragic road traffic crashes."

The council's road safety team is continuing its efforts to improve on these statistics with a series of new measures across Medway.

These include the areas first puffin crossing on the A2 at Rainham, as well as the screening of a road safety for Medway students.

If you would like more information about free road safety services, contact travel.safety@medway.gov.uk or call 01634 331710 or visit www.medway.gov.uk/saferjourneys.

Jail warning over mortgage fraud

A MORTGAGE fraudster who lied about his income in order to secure a £500,000 loan has been given a suspended prison sentence.

Harvinder Singh Basi, of The Shades, Rochester, knowingly submitted false details on a remortgage application form in a bid to get his hands on the six-figure sum.

The 35-year-old was sentenced at Maidstone Crown Court after being found guilty of fraud in August.

The court heard how Basi bought his Rochester property for £325,000 in December, 2006, thanks largely to a £100,000 handout from his parents.

In May, 2008, Basi applied, through a broker based in Staffordshire, to remortgage the home in order to get his hands on more than £300,000 to purchase a plot of land.

Salary

On the application form the would-be developer stated he had a personal income eight times higher than his real earnings. His lie saw him receive a loan of £504,519, despite the £36,000 annual payments for the remortgage standing at almost three times his entire salary for 2008 – £13,062.

The fraudster was given a 52-week prison sentence, suspended for two years, a four-month curfew to remain at his home address between 8pm and 6am every day, 200 hours' community service and ordered to contribute towards court costs of £1,500.

Basi was warned by Judge David Griffith-Jones QC that if he failed to adhere to the sentencing he would be jailed.

More than just another brick in the castle wall

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

STONE masons are close to finishing the complex restoration work of the weather-damaged section of Rochester Castle's curtain wall.

The craftsmen have painstakingly repaired the 24-metre section of retaining wall, which collapsed in March after heavy rain led to ground movement.

Emergency shoring works were carried out to limit further short-term damage to the wall – not part of the original Roman or medieval structure – and ensure adjoining historic walls were not disturbed.

Structural engineers were then called in to install a concrete base slab and a reinforced concrete wall, before giving the entire new section a ragstone face, in-keeping with the existing wall.

Masons will demonstrate how the final pieces of thin Kentish stone, taken from the fallen wall, will be put into place from 1pm today.

English Heritage's Roy Porter said: "We have been working hard to find the best way to solve this complex problem.

"There were two primary objectives. First, we needed to ensure there was no further ground disturbance that might put at risk the castle's medieval curtain wall.

"Second, we had to design a solution that not only performed an important engineering role but also harmonised with the setting and character of the castle.

RAGSTONE: Repairs to Rochester Castle's damaged curtain wall will be completed this month

"We have sought to create a new structure which is up to the job of retaining the ground beneath the curtain wall without harming the heritage values of Rochester Castle."

Medway Council's community services chief, Cllr Howard Doe, said: "We have been working closely with English Heritage to assess the best way to protect the castle's medieval walls which, thankfully, were not affected by the collapse.

"Rochester Castle is one of Medway's real gems and a vital part of the area's heritage.

"This conservation project has been a priority for both the council and English Heritage and it is great to see this iconic monument restored for residents and visitors alike to enjoy."

QUESTION & ANSWER

PAUL FOLEY

Q What does your role at the club involve?

A I am the manager of Chatham Town Football Club in the Ryman South League. My official title is first team manager and my duties include managing and training a large group of footballers to achieve the best possible results.

Q When did you take over at Chatham Town and what is your background?

A I started in August, so this is my first season in charge. Prior to that I spent three seasons at VCD Athletic in the Kent Premier and then the Ryman North League.

Q Who did you represent in your playing days?

A I played for Margate, Fisher Athletic, Cray Wanderers, Greenwich Borough, Erith and Belvedere, Ramsgate, Maidstone United, Dartford and VCD Athletic. I have worn the shirts of a fair few clubs in Kent and London.

Q What is your full-time occupation?

A I am a chartered surveyor/project manager by profession. I am now working on a project for Waitrose stores. I've been involved for two years. Before this, I worked for a residential developer and was partner at a large surveying company.

Q What is the best aspect of being manager of Chatham Town?

A It has to be winning games. Besides that, I take great pleasure in seeing young players progress, both on and off the pitch.

Q And the worst aspect?

A That would have to be losing. Nobody likes losing, do they? Also with the role comes a lot of responsibility. I put a lot of extra hours in to ensure arrangements for games are all in order. The same goes for training. It involves an awful lot of texting and phone calls.

Q Are you pleased with Chatham's start to the season?

A It has been a mixed bag. We started very well but then had a dip in form. We have suffered terribly with injuries and suspensions but are nearing full strength again, so I am confident we can regain some of our early consistency.

Q What are your hopes for this campaign?

A My main aim is to ensure the club is heading in the right direction. It would also be nice to beat last season's sixth place finish in the league. Anything more would be a bonus at the moment. We will all be working as hard as possible to fulfil the club's potential.

Q What advice would you give to young footballers?

A These days it's important to try to play in every position. I started as a winger and ended up playing centre-half. They must also work hard on their weaker foot. Above all, enjoy the game rather than worrying too much about winning. There is plenty of time for that when you step up to senior football.

Q Do you have any heroes?

A I have two: Muhammed Ali and Kenny Dalglish. One was brash and charismatic, the other could be dour and introverted. They were both genius sportsmen and incredibly committed. Ali was the greatest and always will be. As a youngster, Dalglish played for Celtic in the morning and went to watch his beloved Rangers in the afternoon. Both had it tough and still reached the top. I met Dalglish when I was a youngster. I couldn't speak I was so star-struck.

Q Can you tell us a little known fact about yourself?

A About eight or nine years ago I led Maidstone United out as captain and it was featured on the TV show Football Focus as part of their Road to Wembley coverage of the FA Cup. It was an extremely proud moment. I had it on video, but it got taped over with Teletubbies for my daughter.

BOX CLEVER: Taking delivery of the flats

Nine new homes off the back of a lorry

NINE new flat-pack flats have been wheeled into Medway.

The low-level block of flats were winched into place near the Strand, Gillingham, after being delivered by lorry. The properties, on a plot where the Four Brothers pub once stood, will be completed by December, when mhs homes will make them available for rent. Head of development Emma Riddington said: "The flats are in a sought-after area with easy road and rail links to the county and London."

"What's more, some will have river views and all residents will be able to enjoy the Strand park and walks along the Saxon Shore Way."

Academy hopes BAM will prove an inspired choice

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

CONSTRUCTION work is due to begin at Strood Academy next year, education bosses have revealed.

The £29 million building will include a sixth form development and a vocation centre designed to provide a variety of vocational courses to both pupils and the community, called the Inspiration Centre.

Contractors are due to start work in spring 2011, subject to full planning permission. The work will be carried out by BAM Construction. Strood Academy principal Richard Hart said: "We are delighted to be working with BAM and Nicholas Hare Architects to provide Strood with outstanding new academy buildings."

"We have been working with Medway Council and our sponsors the University for the Creative Arts for a year and believe pupils, staff, parents and the community will have an exciting building that will help us raise standards and engage the community."

BAM Construction, unveiled as Medway Council's preferred bidder last week, will also take on building work at Medway's two other academies: the Bishop of Rochester Academy, and Brompton Academy.

Medway Council's children's services chief, Cllr Les Wicks, said: "Our three academies are part of the council's work to provide the best opportunities for our children and young people and help improve educational standards in Medway. I am pleased we have reached this critical stage of appointing a contractor.

"The contractor's scheme was chosen for the way in which it responded to the educational brief as well as views raised by students during the design competition and their desire to be involved in the build."

"What these academies will offer is not only inspiring buildings for children and young people in which to learn, achieve and thrive, but also hubs for the community, with fantastic facilities that will benefit everyone in Medway."

Designs for the Bishop of Rochester Academy,

Chatham, will be developed from the end of the year, with design work for the new build at Brompton Academy, Gillingham, starting the following year.

Both projects are expected to be completed by summer 2013. Strood Academy opened in September 2009 following the closure of Chapter School and Temple School.

The Bishop of Rochester Academy opened last month following the closure of Medway Community College and Chatham South School. Brompton Academy also opened last month following the closure of New Brompton College.

KoS chief hits the Inca trail for kids' charities

■ BY MARIJKE COX

BEING dropped into the middle of the Amazon jungle, home to some of the most dangerous species of wildlife in the world, would be most people's idea of a nightmare.

And as for trekking thousands of metres above sea level with risk of altitude sickness and exhaustion – most would get straight back on a plane to the UK.

But for Paul Stannard, managing director of Archant KOS Media, the publisher of this newspaper, it is all part of his Peruvian adventure which will see him and seven others trekking the famous Inca Trail to Machu Picchu, the Lost City of the Incas, to raise money for two of Kent's charities.

Mr Stannard, 46, has funded the trip himself so every penny raised will go to Dave Lee's Happy Holidays, a charity sending sick and deprived children on holiday, and Demelza House, a children's hospice in Sittingbourne providing end of life care.

Speaking ahead of his trip, Mr Stannard said 10 days of hardship was nothing compared to what these youngsters had to cope with: "Whatever challenges I face can't be compared to what those poor kids are going through. I wanted to do something big to get a lot of support for these charities.

"We've raised money for Kent children through the KOS Media Christmas appeal, but this year I wanted to do something bigger. I've seen what Dave Lee and Demelza do. I feel it's the least I can do to give something back."

The trip will see Mr Stannard swapping his suit and tie for a pair of khaki shorts to tackle the Inca Trail before being dropped to the middle of the Amazon rainforest, where he will stay for four days.

He explained: "We acclimatise for a day and then we join a group and climb the Inca Trail and see Machu Picchu."

While two of his group will then fly home, Mr Stannard and the braver members will stay on to be airlifted into the middle of the jungle: "We'll spend four days living with the local wildlife, like anacondas and tarantulas, and travel by foot and in wooden canoes. There are piranhas and electric eels in the Amazon. We're doing this the real way."

But Mr Stannard said he is looking forward to the challenge.

"I've been doing a lot of walking and cycling to prepare, although you can't do anything to prepare for altitude sickness."

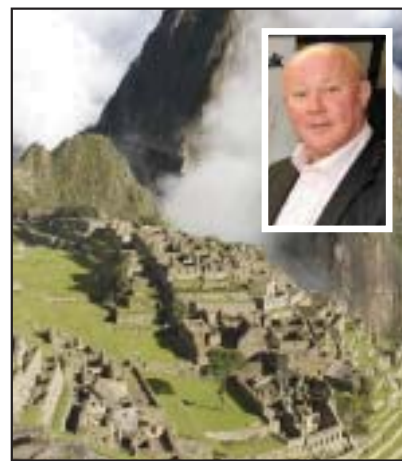

Mr Stannard is aiming to raise £10,000.

To make a donation to Dave Lee's Happy Holidays go to www.justgiving.com/Paul-Stannard and for Demelza House go to www.justgiving.com/Paul-Stannard0.

People wishing to send in donations can make cheques payable to Dave Lee's Happy Holidays or Demelza House Children's Hospice and send them to Kerry Head at KOS Media Ltd, Apple Barn, Hythe Road, Smeeth, Ashford, TN25 6SS.

On his return, Mr Stannard will write a blog about his travels, with pictures and film clips available at www.kentnews.co.uk.

Bee world's buzzing again

IT'S BACK – the bumblebee is on the rise in Kent.

And the Royal Society for the Protection of Birds said it is all down to the new Environmental Stewardship scheme that is working in Kent.

Picture: JAMES LINDSEY AT ECOLOGY OF COMMANSTER

By encouraging the sowing of pollen and nectar plots, the numbers of bees along the coastal area around Romney Marsh are buzzing once more.

In all, five of Britain's seven species are making a comeback along the Dungeness coast thanks to the combined effort of local farmers, landowners and conservationists.

One of those five includes include one of the country's rarest bumblebees, the shrill carder bee.

Populations are doing so well that the shrill carder has been seen in areas where it has not been recorded for 25 years, including neighbouring Sussex.

About 50 farms in the area are part of a project launched in January last year being run by the Bumblebee Conservation Trust, Hymettus, Natural England, and the RSPB.

It helps restore the habitat of the short-haired bumblebee in advance of its re-introduction from New Zealand where a team is specially breeding them before they are brought back to Kent.

It's the second attempt, after the first batch suddenly died before transportation.

Corridors of suitable habitat linking farmland and nature reserves have been formed to allow bees to spread out. More than 800 hectares of habitat has been created by farmers through the project.

The five species on the up are the large garden/ruderal bumblebee, known as Bombus ruderalis; the shrill carder bee or Bombus sylvarum; the red shanked carder bee also known as Bombus ruderalis; the moss carder bee or Bombus muscorum, and the brown banded carder bee or Bombus humilis.

Sheps' beers getting 'a head' of competition

KENT brewer Shepherd Neame has defied a sluggish economy and gloom in the pub trade by posting a record £115.4 million turnover and best-ever volumes for its beer brands.

The results for its financial year to the end of June also show pre-tax profits up by a quarter to £8.7m.

The profits surge was delivered partly by the benefits from a major re-shuffle of its pub estate the previous year; when many lower volume outlets were sold off in favour of bigger and better located outlets more suited to the Faversham-based firm's increasingly food-orientated business.

Affectionately known as 'Sheps', the brewer's best performing brands were two of its own packaged and draught ales, Spitfire and Bishop's Finger, and the highly successful Japanese bottled and draught lager, Asahi Super Dry, which it brews under licence.

They contributed to a total increase in beer volumes of 4.8 per cent in the year to June and the company said momentum is continuing, with like-for-like sales up 3.5 per cent.

Ofsted report good news for primary

PUPILS and staff of Chattenden Primary School have cause for celebration after receiving a glowing report from Ofsted.

The Rochester school received the good news just a month into the new term, and has been commended for the standard of teaching and pupil interaction, which was described as outstanding.

Headteacher Heather Walding said: "We are delighted and very proud of our school's success. The whole school community has worked very hard to provide the very best for our learners, and we will remain dedicated to the happiness and achievement of our children."

Following an inspection back in July, Ofsted inspectors described the school as being a caring and safe place to be. They also praised the pupils' attitude to responsibilities in the classroom, and understanding of the need for regular exercise and a healthy diet.

Medway Council's children's services chief Les Wicks, said: "Congratulations to everyone at Chattenden Primary. What a wonderful way to start the new school term."

"Clearly, the pupils are achieving well and getting an excellent start in life at this school. The children and parents are happy, which is a great testament to the school."

"Well done to all the staff, governors, parents and carers for helping make this school a place where children can enjoy learning and flourish."

Chattenden Primary has 169 pupils all aged between 4 and 11.

The overall report described the school as good.

Designer gets on his bike to back Boris's cycling scheme

■ BY DAN COLOMBINI

A LECTURER at the University for the Creative Arts has made his mark on London Fashion Week by designing a bike for the capital's cycle hire scheme.

Jean-Pierre Braganza, a designer and lecturer at the UCA in Rochester, showcased his design as part of his new collection in September. The limited edition print will feature on some of mayor Boris Johnson's flagship Cycle Hire bikes, which provide a low cost form of public transport for the city's many commuters and tourists.

Mr Braganza said: "As a very keen cyclist in London I'm excited to be part of this initiative."

"By customising a bike for London Fashion Week I hope to indicate the inspiration travel has provided in my work and highlight that everyone can, and should, explore and discover London."

As well as designing new bikes for the capital, Mr Braganza has also been sharing his talents with students on the BA (Hons) Fashion Design Course at the UCA in Rochester since 2002.

Donna Ives, course leader at the university said: "Jean-Pierre is a fantastic person to have at UCA Rochester – he is a really talented and accomplished designer, plus he's inspirational and offers practical advice to the students."

"We have great links with the fashion industry and are also very proud to have influential designers, such as Marcos Wilmont (Aminaka Wilmont) and Louis De Gama, teaching on the

CAPITAL IDEA: Designer Jean-Pierre Braganza with the Cycle Hire bikes he designed for London Fashion Week

Fashion Design course at UCA Rochester."

Mr Braganza's work also appears to have been well received by London mayor, Boris Johnson, the man responsible for the cycle hire initiative.

He said: "London is known around the globe for its fashion and transport icons: from Kate Moss on our catwalks to the famous red buses on our streets."

"I am delighted our newest transport icon, the Barclays cycle hire bicycles, have managed to transcend the world of transport, and due to this fabulous tie-up, can now be considered the most stylish accessory to use to get around town – for this and any other season."

Since the launch of the scheme in June, it has proved extremely popular for both Londoners and tourists, with more than 80,000 members and over 500,000 journeys made to date.

Plans for Boris Island on runway once again

Estuary airport idea will cost Tory votes

The Chancellor has no right sticking his nose into the despised Thames Estuary airport proposal.

This loony plan, which has already been thrown out by Government despite Boris Johnson's best efforts, should be consigned to the rubbish bin and never allowed to see the light of day again.

Such an airport would have a devastating effect on the north Kent shoreline, our wildlife, our environment and infrastructure.

Nothing good can come out of this half-baked idea. We already have an airport in Kent. Why not expand that one? I can see a lot of Conservative voters, especially those who helped David Cameron into power, switch back to Labour if this airport is allowed to get off the ground. Let's hope Mr Osborne sees sense and throws these plans out once and for all.

Simon Portman, Gillingham

Emergency police? Can you get my next of kin to go shopping?

999 time-wasters are such a disgrace

People who make ridiculous 999 calls should be prosecuted for wasting police time. It is blindingly obvious the number should only be used in an emergency.

People should not call 999 when they need shopping and cannot reach their next of kin, unless they are calling for an ambulance to take them to the nearest hospital to have their head examined.

Sadly, there is a always going to be small minority who dial 999 in non-emergency circumstances.

It concerns me that the number of nuisance 999 calls is on the rise. All the more reason to threaten these time-wasters with prosecution and public ridicule.

It won't take long for these idiots to think twice before dialling 999 if they know they will receive a fine and humiliation from their peers.

Roger Harper, by email

Church can't ignore elephant in the room

Reading all the arguments for and against the Pope and the Roman your blogger

Ian MacMillan ponders the meaning and value of the Commonwealth Games

AS SOMEONE interested in sport in general and athletics in particular, I have been watching the Commonwealth Games.

But what exactly is the Commonwealth? And what are games in the context of these extravaganzas?

It surprised me to learn that Maria Mutola of Mozambique, who dominated the women's 800 metres for more than a decade, also has Commonwealth golds in her collection. Bearing in mind that Mozambique was a Portuguese colony before independence, this seemed strange.

But, apparently, the Commonwealth is no longer a PC name for the old British Empire. It seems to be a collection of independent states that can choose to join or not. A meaningless concept, in other words.

As for the actual 'extravaganza', I'm sure the Delhi opening ceremony was superb, but I didn't watch it because, as far as I'm concerned, it has nothing to do with sport. Every global event that isn't the main focus of the world's best has no legitimacy, in either the Olympics or the Commonwealth Games.

I remember the first World Athletics Championships in the early 1980s and was pleased to see Essex's Colin Reitz get a bronze, with American Henry Marsh falling at the last hurdle.

I rashly thought winning an event in the World Championships would supersede winning Olympic gold. It seems to me Olympic and Commonwealth events only have legitimacy if the participants regard it as their primary goal. We have tennis in the Delhi games, yet a win in one of the Grand Slams must be the players' first priority. Likewise, in cycling, the Tour de France is the main event. We have lawn bowls in these games and golf might be included in the 2012 Olympics. What is a 'game' and what is a 'sport' is up for discussion, but when Tom Watson, aged 60, can almost win a major event, I don't think golf has any business in the Olympics.

When Paula Radcliffe won the World Championships marathon, I thought winning a major title would be a monkey off her back, though she had won a 5,000m gold in the Commonwealths at Manchester and a European 10,000m gold as well.

I remember talking to a girl invited to run in the Commonwealth marathon in Kuala Lumpur. She said: "Thanks, but no thanks."

Why Radcliffe is bothered about winning Olympic gold is beyond me. There's more money and fast times up for grabs in the many city marathons.

Nevertheless, I'm looking forward to seeing fourth-string Kenyans and second-string Brits contest the running events in Delhi. As for lawn bowls, shooting and martial arts – thanks, but no thanks.

PAPAL VISIT: Blogger from September 29

Catholic Church, everybody has missed the elephant in the room – like Gary Wright claiming they have something to do with Christianity. (Blogger, September 29). Some claim the Catholic Church to be Christian, others ask how a Christian Church can be so evil and corrupt, but nobody asks whether the Church actually lives up to Christ's standards and represents his ministry.

The argument hinges on whether the Catholic Church represents Christ on Earth. I have read and re-read Christ's ministry and I can't find where he told us to kill or torture our enemies. In fact, he said we should love our enemies. He told us to stay apart from the world's systems, and yet Pope Pius XII (aka Hitler's Pope) colluded with fascism. In two world wars Catholic killed Catholic and there's still sectarian violence in Ireland. As for the attempt to hide the abuse scandal – imagine what Christ would have said about that. Wherever you go on the checklist of Christ against the Catholic Church they fail again and again. This is not about innocent, fallible people making mistakes. It's about a Church more interested in its own interests than God's will. People are being driven away from Christ, as they really think this corrupt Church represents Jesus.

Healthy workers are lifeblood of industry

Our recent survey shows 82 per cent of workers in the South East are failing to get the recommended amount of exercise each week.

A third also revealed they are too embarrassed to get hot and sweaty in front of colleagues and 52 per cent are spending over half of their day sitting or standing still.

At the current rate of waistline expansion over a third of men and over a quarter of women will be obese in just five years, putting them at increased risk of high blood pressure, type two diabetes and heart disease. That's why we're asking everyone to start getting fit and healthy during the working week by joining our Health at Work programme. Our website is packed with tips for a healthy workforce including information about how to start a health club, healthy eating and fitness guides, e-newsletters, and the chance to order a Think Fit pack which includes activity planners and posters. What's more it's free. Visit bhf.org.uk/healthatwork to find out more.

Lisa Purcell, British Heart Foundation

We need Dungeness C, not more hot air

Britain faces a power crisis of unimaginable proportions. Our generating capacity is degrading at a rapid pace and according to energy minister Chris Huhne we face blackouts in a few years.

We are looking at a shortfall of at least 40 per cent as our elderly nuclear and conventional gas, coal and oil power stations reach their dotage. As they close, the spectre of fuel poverty will raise its head.

Last winter thousands of pensioners died because they were unable to heat their homes. This is just the beginning. After wages, the biggest cost to most businesses is energy. We have all seen domestic bills soar in recent years, cutting into our income and making life less pleasant. How can this be?

It is not as if we don't know that we need power, it is not as if siren voices haven't been warning us that unless we seriously invest we will be back to candles and water-mills. Many in our political and social elite see developments such as Swedish company Vattenfall's Thanet offshore wind farm as the only way forward. It isn't, and here's why. They need back-up power (conventional power stations – the ones that are closing) running continuously in case the wind stops. To supply the UK's energy needs of 78GW we would require at least 78,000 5MW turbines. The Government boasts we have 4,500 of them. They are not self-funding and can only survive with subsidies such as the 14 per cent secretly added to electricity bills to pay for our EU-inspired renewable energy obligation. And you thought the wind was free? They are unreliable, unpredictable and fail to provide jobs. Vattenfall says Kent will get 21 jobs in Ramsgate, but the company will get £1.2 billion over 20 years, if they last that long.

These vanity projects will never provide the power we need. According to the UK Energy Research Centre, the energy produced at Thanet over the projected 25-year lifespan of the farm, measured in megawatt hours, is expected to be £149 a pop. That compares with £80 for coal and gas, and £97 for nuclear. Costs have increased for all generation, but offshore wind farms are the most expensive. This is madness. Two years ago, Parliament near unanimously supported the Climate Change Act. This forces us to cut CO2 emissions by 80 per cent by 2050, at a cost of up to £18bn a year, or £734bn in total. They have done this to apply EU rules. What they don't tell you is that they are slowly seeing through the climate scam themselves. In June at the Bilderburg conference of world leaders, the agenda read: "The conference will deal mainly with financial reform, security, cyber technology, energy, Pakistan, Afghanistan, world food problem, global cooling, social networking, medical science, EU-US relations."

Global cooling? They know they are defrauding us. What Britain needs is Dungeness C.

Musketeers wanted for our marathon

Now the results of the Virgin London Marathon ballot have been revealed, we would like to ask any readers who are taking part in the run on April 17, 2011, and have an independent place, if they would like to run for Meningitis UK.

Meningitis UK has a single focus – to find a vaccine to eradicate all forms of meningitis. Tragically, meningitis and meningococcal septicaemia continue to affect thousands in the UK every year and kill more children under five than any other infectious disease.

Everyone who runs for Meningitis UK will be part of the Meningitis Musketeers team, with the motto 'All 4 One and One 4 All' – to highlight the fact that meningitis can kill in under four hours and the importance of our Search 4 a Vaccine Campaign. Full support will be given and everyone who participates will receive a free running vest or T-shirt, and a handy information pack including hints and tips on how to prepare. If you would like to take part in the Virgin London Marathon and help us achieve our vision, please contact me on 0117 302 6191 for a sponsorship pack. I look forward to hearing from you.

Competitive sport returns to schools

AN OLYMPIC-style competition will begin in Kent schools next year as part of the Government's promise to boost the number of children playing competitive sport.

Speaking at the Conservative conference in Birmingham last week, culture, media and sport secretary Jeremy Hunt said it would help create a lasting Olympic legacy.

Kent is one of nine areas to have been chosen to pilot the scheme which involves schools competing against each other in local leagues, with winning athletes and teams qualifying for area finals.

Mr Hunt said: "The success of this project will not be a Schools Olympics in 2012. It will be a Schools Olympics in 2013, 2014 and 2015."

"A lasting legacy, a lasting increase in the number of children playing competitive sport. Bringing competitive sport within reach of millions of children. Preparing them for a competitive world outside."

The first finals will be held in the new Olympic Park in the spring of 2012.

The competition comes after the success of the Kent School Games which sees hundreds of youngsters take part in a range of sports.

Mr Hunt said: "Only a fifth of children play sport regularly against other schools and more than half don't play inter-school sport at all."

"Last year a school cancelled sports day because they were worried a child might fall over."

"Schools are more worried about being sued than being sporty. This has to stop."

Surgeon's relief plea after 'mind-blowing' flood visit

■ BY MARIJKE COX

A PAKISTANI doctor has urged people not to forget the ongoing suffering of flood victims after he witnessed the shocking aftermath during an aid trip.

Dr Matin Sheriff, a surgeon at Medway Maritime Hospital, went to stricken areas of Pakistan where more than 2,000 people died and millions were left homeless after severe flooding nine weeks ago. The 48-year-old, originally from Azad Kashmir in Pakistan, said he was shocked by what he saw.

"Seeing pictures on television is one thing, but looking into the eyes of the sufferers is another. It is mind-blowing," he said.

"I'm a surgeon and I wanted to go out there, but it's not operations people need. They need clean water, basic essentials and antibiotics."

"Some people have been rehoused with family or friends, others are in tents. There are water-borne diseases and infections. People are suffering from dysentery and typhoid."

Dr Sheriff, who has worked in Medway for ten years, took a donation of £20,000 and helped with the relief efforts by giving out tents and food and assisting in setting up shops, and renovating a school and hospital.

"There is only so much you can physically do yourself. The damage is colossal. There has been a breakdown of infrastructure," he said.

SHOCKED: Dr Matin Sheriff has urged Britons to keep up their relief efforts after the disastrous floods in Pakistan

"Much of it is still under water. The armed forces are working hard and the NGOs [non-government organisations] are doing fantastic work. It's our moral duty to do what we can for the weak and vulnerable."

Dr Sheriff said he visited Pakistan so he could see the devastation for himself, but also to make people in Britain aware that this was a long-term problem.

"The media is beginning to die down on this yet it will take five to ten years before things are sorted out over there," he said. "We collected £20,000 from family and friends and took the money to see how we could use it properly."

Dr Sheriff, who led a relief project providing medical assistance after the Pakistan earthquake in 2005, said he was concerned about where the millions in donations given by the international community had gone.

"There's a lot of corruption," he said. "The Pakistan government is using a lot of rhetoric, but there's very little action."

Since the flooding, after heavy monsoons in July, £70 million has been raised through British donations. The Disasters Emergency Committee flood appeal alone reached £60m last week. Dr Sheriff said we should be proud of what Britain had done. He urged people not to forget the suffering and continue to help raise funds, but warned donors to be careful which charities they give to.

"I would say to those wanting to donate to be careful how they give money," he said. "Use reputable organisations so you know the money is going to be used properly."

Musician Tift has tales to tell

TIFT MERRITT

Sunday, October 17
Breeze Bar, Maidstone.

NORTH Carolina girl Tift Merritt brings her acclaimed music to Maverick Live this weekend.

Now based in New York, the singer-songwriter still considers North Carolina to be her home and she began her career in the clubs of Chapel Hill. With her latest album, See You on the Moon, she translates her gift for writing short stories into her music, with songs that tell a multitude of tales.

When she was a child, Merritt was taught guitar chords by her father and learned to play Percy Sledge songs. She developed a talent for writing prose, and although she performed as a solo artist during her early 20s, she decided that she was not very good at making music.

Concluding that it would be better to pursue a literary career, she joined the University of North Carolina to study creative writing. It was while studying there that she met Zeke Hutchins, a fellow musician whose band had recently been put on hold. He had decided to become a teacher instead, but together the pair formed their own band.

Armed with their shared taste for 70s albums, Merritt and Hutchins set themselves up in her farmhouse and practised songs – Merritt at her red piano and Hutchins playing drums in the kitchen. As The Carabines, they played at various venues around Chapel Hill and Merritt made a guest appearance on the Two Dollar Pistols with Tift Merritt EP.

After winning Merlefest's Chris Austin Songwriting Contest in 2000, she enlisted the help of Ryan Adams to find a manager and recording contract with Lost Highway Records. Produced by Ethan Johns, her debut album, Bramble Rose, was declared the best debut of 2002, in any genre, by Associated Press. It was also included on the Top 10 lists of Time magazine and the New Yorker, so anticipation for her next album was high.

Tambourine, released in 2004, earned Merritt a Grammy nomination and three nominations for the Americana Music Awards.

Two years later, as a successful tour wound down, Merritt decamped to Paris and wrote her third album, Another Country, at a piano in a rented flat there. The next release was a solo live album recorded in England and she recruited Tucker Martine to produce her latest album, See You on the Moon.

As well as being a successful musician, Merritt also exhibited the journals and pictures behind Another Country in an exhibition last year.

As producer of The Spark, a programme for Texan radio, she explores the life and creative processes of people behind great works of art.

Last year she married Zeke Hutchins and the couple now live in New York, although Merritt has a habit of renting apartments in unfamiliar towns, with only a piano for company while she writes new songs.

With her striking beauty, dynamic stage presence and indisputable talent, Merritt makes a captivating performer who should not be missed when she visits Kent this weekend.

She is in the UK to open shows for Mary

Chapin Carpenter at larger theatres, but she is also fitting in a few gigs at more intimate venues, such as the Breeze Bar.

The show, which starts at 7.45pm, also features singer-songwriter Stephen Simmons. Tickets cost £18 and can be booked by calling 01622 744481.

RAVEN

Saturday, October 16, St Matthew's Church, Gillingham

DAZZLING string quartet Raven will be making music take flight in the next St Matthew's community concert.

With their dramatic and engaging style, they present classical and modern works in a way that enthalls their audience. After touring with singer Hayley Westenra last year, they will soon be embarking on another tour with her.

The audience can expect to hear works such as Vivaldi's Four Seasons Medley, Ravel's Bolero, Gade's Tango Jalousie, Shostakovich's Foxtrot, Brahms' Hungarian Dance and more, all performed in Raven's enthusiastic style.

The quartet comprises Stephanie Benedetti, Rachael Lander, Kirsty Mangan and Natalie Holt, who have been playing together for two years. They have already made a big noise on the live scene, as well as working with the likes of Gorillaz, Jools Holland, Leona Lewis and Gwen Stefani.

The concert starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £7.50. Free seats for accompanied children must be booked in advance. To book call 01634 372508 or email mattconcerts@hotmail.co.uk.

COMEDY CLUB

Friday, October 15, Tudor Park Hotel and Country Club, Maidstone

START your weekend with an evening of laughter as three more acts perform at the Comedy Club.

After prompting plenty of belly laughs in his home town of Belfast, Ryan McDonnell is now making a name for himself on the UK comedy circuit.

With his Irish charm and sharp, witty observations, he reached the final of the Magners Comedy Awards and was the runner-up at last year's Amused Moose Laugh-Off final.

Calling on his encyclopaedic general knowledge and warm personality, opening act John Ryan is able to win over any audience.

His show about men's health attracted much attention, and ongoing projects with the London Science Museum and Unison.

The headline act is improvisation group, The Noise Next Door, whose ability to conjure laughs out of thin air is remarkable.

Billed as an improvised comedy troupe, these five slightly-posh blokes are back in Kent direct from their sell-out show at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival, where their performances attracted yet more critical acclaim.

The over-18s show starts at 8.30pm and tickets cost £14/£12. To book call 01622 632006 or visit www.hahaheeh.com to find out more.

THE BON JOVI EXPERIENCE

Friday, October 15, Hazlitt Theatre, Maidstone

KEEP the faith and enjoy an evening of rock with top tribute band, The Bon Jovi Experience.

The only tribute group to have actually shared a stage with Jon Bon Jovi, they are renowned for their uncanny reproduction of the original band's sound. The "freaky" likeness between Bon Jovi Experience front man Tony and his idol was even commented upon by Chad Kroeger, of Canadian rock band Nickelback.

Tony has been performing the music of Bon Jovi for more than 15 years and appeared alongside Jon Bon Jovi and Richie Sambora on Channel 4's Big Breakfast. Radio and TV presenter Chris Evans declared that the Bon Jovi Experience was "the greatest tribute band he had ever seen".

Tony began his singing career at the age of six, when he was chosen for the school choir, and went on to have extensive vocal training in various styles. He formed the tribute band By Jovi in 1995 and left in 2004, to form The Bon Jovi Experience.

The show starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £15/£13.50. Book on 01622 758611 or visit www.hazlittartscentre.co.uk.

HOBSON'S CHOICE

Running until Saturday, October 16, Medway Little Theatre, Rochester

DOMINEERING cobbler Henry Hobson meets his match in Harold Brighouse's popular play.

Hobson's Choice tells the story of a respected businessman who runs his firm with the help of his three unpaid daughters, Maggie, Alice and Vicky. Although he is considered to be a pillar of the local community, Hobson spends most of his time drinking in the pub and the majority of work is done by underpaid, but highly skilled shoemaker, Willie Mossop.

When Maggie spots Willie's business and romantic potential, she proposes marriage and the couple set up a shop on their own. But Hobson refuses to give the money required to enable his other daughters to marry, so Maggie resolves to marry them off herself.

Hobson is played by John Winson, with Gemma Bowles, Torie Hayhow and Natalie Bradbury playing his daughters. Rob East stars as Willie and the cast is completed by Marcus Chambers, Andrew Kelly, Michael Bath, Frank Linton, Alan Whippy, Jaki Newton and Babs McDonald.

Tickets are priced from £4.50. To book call the box office on 01634 400322 or go to www.mlt.org.uk.

TANGO PASION

Saturday, October 16, Central Theatre, Chatham

EXPERIENCE the sizzling sensuality of the dance floor when Tango Pasión visits Medway this weekend.

The internationally acclaimed company is visiting the UK for the first time, and dance fans have the chance to see exquisite displays of the hugely-popular Argentine tango.

In their new show, Último Tango, a dozen of Buenos Aires' finest dancers guide the audience through the ages of the dance, from its lower class roots to its current status as one of the world's most sensual dances. Accompanied by a seven-piece orchestra, the dancers will perform 30 scenes featuring couples, groups and the entire ensemble. The soundtrack pays tribute to artists of the early 20th century through to the present day.

The show is choreographed by Hector Zaraspe, who was a tutor to legendary ballet dancers, Rudolf Nureyev and Dame Margo Fonteyn. Produced by the creators of hit Broadway production, Tango Argentino, this show promises to capture the thrill and romance of the Argentine tango.

The performance starts at 7.30pm and tickets cost £18/£17. To book call the box office on 01634 338338 or visit the website at www.thecentraltheatre.co.uk.

Greed is good, but green is better as Gekko returns to Wall Street

■ BY DAMON SMITH

MORE than 20 years after Michael Douglas won an Oscar as scheming Wall Street trader Gordon Gekko in Oliver Stone's acclaimed film, the character's mantra, Greed is good, rings louder and clearer than ever.

The global recession continues to bite and much of the blame is laid at the revolving doors of avaricious bankers, who took big risks and somehow enjoyed massive bonuses for their spectacular failure.

Against this backdrop of mismanagement, writer-director Stone returns to the hallowed halls of New York's financial district, where banks go cap in hand to the US government for bail-outs to strength the system's crumbling foundations.

Aside from a brief cameo from Charlie Sheen as Bud Fox, Gekko is the only returning character for the sequel, which pits Douglas's dinosaur, who has been languishing behind bars, against a new generation of men in suits.

The global financial landscape may have changed, but the pursuit of profits at the expense of friendships and the natural world has not.

As the lead character in Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps tells his environmentally-conscious fiancée: "The only green is money, honey".

The film opens in 2008 with Gekko (Michael Douglas) being released from prison with his effects, which include a gold money clip and a hefty, brick-like mobile phone.

He emerges into a world that is firmly controlled by the financial community and teetering on the brink of ruin.

Gordon finds new success with a best-selling book and tour, telling his adoring public: "The mother of all evil is speculation. It's a global disease, like cancer, and we've got to fight back."

CHANGED MAN? Michael Douglas is back on Wall Street as Gordon Gekko, out of prison and seen here with his estranged daughter Winnie, played by Carey Mulligan

In the audience is the boyfriend of Gordon's estranged daughter Winnie (Carey Mulligan), ambitious trader Jake Moore (Shia LaBeouf), who is trying to promote alternative-energy stocks

He is inspired by Gordon's words, but knows that making contact would jeopardise his relationship with the woman of his dreams.

When Jake's mentor, Louis Zabel (Frank Langella), commits suicide after his beloved company is taken over by vicious rival Bretton James (Josh Brolin), the young man swears revenge and enlists the help of Gordon to destroy Bretton and the people he works for.

Wall Street: Money Never Sleeps bares its teeth at the banking community but ultimately doesn't draw blood, using the current recession as a hook for a retread of the original film with some tearful father-daughter bonding thrown in for good measure.

LaBeouf and Mulligan are well matched and both cry convincingly as they struggle to keep their relationship afloat in a sea of lies and betrayal.

"He'll hurt us," Winnie warns Jake.

Douglas clearly relishes the chance to slip back into the designer threads of his signature role, gleefully taking on old enemies by promising, "Stop telling lies about me and I'll stop telling the truth about you."

GLAMOROUS: Victoria Coren, presenter of BBC 4's quiz show Only Connect

YOUR TV REVIEW ONLY CONNECT: BBC 4, 8.30pm, Monday

■ BY ED HILL

WE'VE probably all shouted at the stupidity of the contestants who can't answer the questions on the early rounds of Who Wants to be a Millionaire, but not all quizzes give us the chance to get that feeling of superiority.

One such show is Only Connect on BBC 4. When this programme first started a couple of years ago, it seemed to me to be the equivalent of watching the mesmerizing goings on in a dentist's waiting room.

There was something about it that reminded me of the 70s classic with Robert Robertson, Ask the Family.

As a youngster I used to watch that show and wonder where these families came from. They were so highbrow, I assumed it must have been from some strange planet in our solar system. One where elbow patches were compulsory from the age of three (both for boys and girls) and a bedtime story was 'The Principles of Mathematics' by Bertrand Russell.

A lot of contestants on Only Connect come from the same planet, and the questions are written in a code decipherable only by Martians.

However, I have to admit it has slowly grown on me. It appeals to the same sort of people who enjoy a good crossword or a Sudoku puzzle. I don't exactly fit into that category but when I do get a question right, I feel perhaps I could have the brilliant mind of Wittgenstein or Spinoza.

The programme is helped by its presenter Victoria Coren, daughter of the late satirist Alan. She has a stern school teacher persona, which I initially took a dislike to; especially when she mocked the contestants if they got the answers wrong. It's all very well being smug when you have the answers in your hand.

Now I realise this is all a bit of a front. As the programme has gone on, glimmers of her humanity come through and her comments are cheeky rather than spiteful.

I suppose being stern is one of the reasons she has become one of the best professional poker players in the world.

She certainly is the most glamorous thing on the programme. It's not the contestants, that's for sure and the set comes from the That'll Do School of Design.

However, the show must be going from strength to strength, this series I noticed BBC bosses have invested in a bigger desk for Ms Coren.

Hurt Process back ... to say goodbye

FAREWELL SHOW: An all-day lineup will join The Hurt Process at the Forum

■ BY SIMON ROBINSON

H A R D C O R E / e m o crossovers The Hurt Process will reform this weekend for one last farewell performance.

The Tunbridge Wells five-piece, whose combination of melodic, teen-angst vocals and full-on guitar breakdowns won over a legion of fans worldwide, split in understated fashion after releasing only two albums.

Promoters at The Forum convinced the quintet to perform together once again, headlining an all-day show in their hometown this Saturday.

Forum organiser Chris Pritchard said: "The Hurt Process show will be the send-off the band never had."

"The band has decided to get together to do one last show. One of Tunbridge Wells' finest exports, alongside Anti Nowhere League, the band has toured the world and had several releases on one of the biggest alternative music labels in the world, Victory Records."

"We have an all-day line-up of bands that simply wanted to play and say goodbye to a band that helped sculpt the now well-established south east punk rock scene."

"Some of these bands include Brotherhood of the Lake, Castor Troy, Lightbringer, Breaking The Day and a couple surprises."

The packed line-up, surprises aside, also includes Lower Than Atlantis, Casino Brawl, Snub, Rachel's Got a Flamethrower, Still Dreaming and Harbours.

The venue plays host to Turbowolf, Let's Talk Daggers and We Have Black Bones on Wednesday, October 20, before welcoming StringerBessant (acoustic project of Reef founding members Gary Stringer and Jack Bessant), Origami Dinosaur and Make on Saturday, October 23.

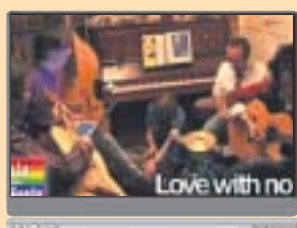

UpCDownC, Breaking the Day and Chain Street & 4th will share the stage on Tuesday, October 26,

HISTORY MADE FUN: Le Secret de la Lance - one of the stunning re-enactment shows at the theme park Puy de Fou, near Les Epesses

yourgetaways

2,000 years of history in one stunning theme park

■ BY JANE SHOTLIFF

READERS of 'Your Getaways' could be forgiven for thinking that all roads lead to France.

Whether it was a fear of the dreaded ashcloud descending again or simply keeping an eye on the pennies, travel within Europe this summer was certainly on the up.

As someone prone to road rage, two weeks behind the wheel, covering some 1,200 miles, could have been fraught here in the UK. But not so in France, where we encountered not a single traffic jam, collision or carriageway repair.

We were heading for a theme park. Not the bright lights of Disneyland Paris, but the pretty Atlantic coast: the unspoiled villages of the Vendee and a unique visitor attraction.

Puy du Fou is a real 'theme' park; telling the history of France from the Vikings and the Romans to the revolution.

Don't go expecting white-knuckle rides. Instead, you'll witness some of the most stunning experiences – from the world's biggest birds of prey flying inches above your head, to daredevil stunts, swordplay and bareback horse-riding in this remarkable voyage through time.

There's even a life-sized copy of Rome's Coliseum, with its daily spectacle of warring gladiators and chariot-racing, culminating in lions and tigers roaming loose.

The highlight of the park is the sound and light spectacular CineScenie. What began as a humble village pageant is now an ambitious theatrical production, with a light show, cinematic projection and spectacular pyrotechnics, as 1,200 local people and their livestock unite to tell the story of the Vendee.

The amphitheatre reverberates to the sound of a full orchestra and choral accompaniment every Friday and Saturday night from June to September. "Formidable" indeed!

You really need at least one night and two full days to enjoy it. A two-day ticket is just 55 Euros for an adult and 32 for a child.

Less than half an hour from this audio-visual overload, however, the Vendee has a whole host of other hidden attractions, offering the kind of peace and tranquility that leaves you wondering if you're the only tourist in town.

The Mining Centre of Faymoreau allows you to experience the sights and sounds of the harsh working life underground. The nearby chapel, with its emotive stained glass windows, is worth a visit too.

The Abbaye de Nieul sur L'Autise might be more than 1,000 years old, but its interactive guides and guided tours in period costume bring history alive for children under nine.

Take a boat trip through the marshes of Le Marais Poitevin or paddle a canoe along the river at Vouvent to see one of the region's prettiest villages.

Pontenay-le-Comte makes an ideal base for exploring all that the Vendee has to offer, with a range of restaurants and shops and only a few miles – well, kilometres – from the sea.

Le Rabelais is a four-star hotel, part of Logis de France, which offers a warm welcome and exquisite food at reasonable rates.

Vauxhall hailing star turns' selling success

SEPTEMBER was a bumper month for Vauxhall with three top five sellers and a total market share of 12.6 per cent.

Vauxhall's number one was the Corsa, followed by the Astra (pictured) and Insignia ranges. Demand for the new Astra hatch enabled the range to beat the perennial leader of the lower-medium car sector, the Ford Focus, and it also sold almost as well to private buyers as to fleets – its traditional market.

Lower down the table, Vauxhall's Zafira was the top compact MPV seller.

New front grille hopes to inspire Civic revival

ORDER books are open for a facelift version of the British-built Honda Civic due in November.

Prices start at £13,995 for the 1.4 Type S and the key features of the makeover are new front grille – inspired by the 'Type R' hot hatch – new alloy wheel options and upgraded interiors for key models.

The Japanese marque is also throwing in some Civic incentives that are increasingly common in the new car sector, including three years' complimentary servicing and three years' free road tax.

Sleeker Eos comes into line with VW's styling

VOLKSWAGON has unveiled the new and much sleeker face of the Eos convertible coupé.

This brings the car into line with the corporate style of the new Polo, Passat and Sharan, but there is also a revised front bumper and bonnet, plus new rear lights.

As before the Eos features an elegant five-piece folding hardtop with integrated tilt/sliding glass sunroof and petrol or diesel engines, but prices and specifications for the revised car will not be announced until order books open next month.

THE MEAN MACHINE: Vauxhall's impressive VXR is cheap against premium German rivals with a stunning interior and also comes in saloon and Sports Tourer (estate) versions

Vauxhall VXR 'Transformer' is well-grounded extrovert

VAUXHALL'S Insignia VXR looks like one of those Transformer robots so popular with the kids.

This cybernetic motor sits on big skeletal alloys that look as though they should be pounding an alien road in another star system, while big chrome exhausts suggest masses of inter-galactic thrust.

And yet this Insignia starship has all the down-to-earth inner space and practicality of ordinary sisters, though the turbocharged 2.8-litre V6 is thirsty and the 268g/km of CO2 incurs the maximum road tax – £950 in year one and £435 thereafter.

Curtain-twitchers in your street may fear you have 'transformed' into a dangerous anti-environmentalist who drives a car apparently designed for Judge Dredd.

The VXR's official figures suggest an average around 25mpg, but you will be urged to crush that figure beneath those brutal alloys; it accelerates from 0-62mph in 5.6 seconds and puts its 325PS (322bhp) down cleanly thanks to an all-wheel drive (AWD) layout that also allows this big car to be chucked around.

up at higher speeds, but if you try to do this by selecting the two sportier chassis/engine/steering settings then it comes at the cost of more unruly behaviour.

The VXR's engine growls pleasingly at rest and when charging up through the gears, but it is not intrusive during motorway cruising.

And the VXR is a lot of car for the money; our hatchback test car has an official list price of £32,290; cheap against German premium rivals and even better if you shop around.

Okay, the Vauxhall will not hold its money like a German premium rival, but it looks stunning inside and out.

Alloy-effect cabin detailing might look brash in places, but everything is well arranged and feels durable and I notched a journey of several hundred miles to prove the comfort of the shaped Recaro racing seats.

Rear space is good and, allied with the VXR's everyday practicality, means any not-so-young boy racer could tell 'er indoors "it really is a family motor" even if the Transformer exterior trimming suggests otherwise.

Indeed, the VXR is not only available in the hatchback format tested here, but also as a saloon and Sports Tourer (estate).

Surveyors' scheme aims to improve service to customers

THE Royal Institution of Chartered Surveyors is to launch a scheme designed to raise the credibility and quality of property valuations.

To be set up on October 20, the Valuer Registration Scheme aims to raise professional standards by ensuring compliance with international guidelines, as well as providing clients with a designation for the best-regulated and qualified professionals.

It will become mandatory in the UK from April 30, 2011, while phased launches will be carried out in other countries around the world.

RICS director of valuation, David Rusholme, said: "This advance will ensure that RICS continues to undertake better regulation and provide increased value to valuers and their clients while acting in the public interest."

Earlier this month, RICS announced the new membership of its UK Quantity Surveyor and Construction Professional Group Board, which is headed up by Rider Levett Bucknall chairman David Bucknall.

Do your maths to make sure you have best mortgage deal

PROPERTY buyers should work out the real cost of their mortgage rather than relying on the headline rate, it has been claimed.

Research by moneysupermarket.com found that borrowers can pay as much as £3,000 more for their mortgages if they only look at headline rates.

Darren Cook, head of press and PR at Moneyfacts.co.uk, said as a mortgage is often the biggest transaction anybody will make in their lives, it is worth taking extra time to ensure it suits them as much as possible.

"Calculate exactly how much it is going to cost with fees as well as rate over the term of the mortgage to see which is the better deal," he said.

"Do the sums to make sure that you are getting the best deal on the rates side, as well as the fees side."

North-south gap set to widen as cuts hit hard

■ BY NICK AMES

HOUSE prices moved very slowly across the UK in September, going up by just 0.1 per cent, according to the latest figures from Nationwide.

The average property value went from £166,507 in August to £166,757 last month.

Martin Gahbauer, Nationwide's chief economist, said that although there was little movement in house prices, the three-month rate of change fell from zero per cent in August to -0.9 per cent in September, marking the first negative reading since May 2009.

However, the gap between different parts of Britain is still notable.

"Where house prices go next will depend on whether the strong flow of new property on to the market continues into the autumn, and on the extent to which existing sellers are willing to compromise on their asking price in order to make a quicker sale," he said.

The figures come as experts say the property price gap between the north and south of the UK is set to increase as a result of the poor economy and government spending cuts.

Figures from Zoopla.co.uk revealed this week that all 10 of the wealthiest housing markets are located in the south, while the 10 poorest are in the north.

At £124,921, North Lincolnshire has the lowest average house prices in the nation and 70 per cent less than values in London.

Kent remains among the highest values, with the high-speed train continuing to be a positive when it comes to attracting buyers from London looking to move into the countryside.

Seaside towns also continue to be attractive to buyers because of a combination of good communications and lower than usual house prices.

Lucian Cook, director at Savills, said the divide is likely to increase as the economic recovery continues to make its presence felt more in the south than the north.

Additionally, public sector employment is generally higher in the north, so the area will therefore suffer the effects of spending cuts more.

"It is usually in the second half of the housing cycle that the north outperforms the south, and I suspect that you will see that, as we slowly head into recovery after a period of price volatility that we are going to witness in the period of the next 12 months," said Mr Cook.

Some analysts expect the figures to improve in line with a general upsurge in confidence among buyers as markets stabilise.

Property pays off for pensioners

RETIRED British homeowners have total property wealth of up to £775 billion, according to analysts.

Research also suggests they have gained £7.94 billion in the past three months alone, despite the state of the UK housing market.

The figures also show that while property wealth is spread throughout the UK, nearly a third of property equity is owned by pensioners in London and the south east of England.

Experts say the figures are a welcome boost for the market as they show that long-term investment in property is a successful way of increasing money, despite short term blips and fluctuations in the market.

The company's group director, Dean Mirfin, said: "The over-65s own considerable property wealth which represents a massive investment success, as they no longer have mortgages and will have bought more than 25 years ago."

"Their property wealth represents an increasingly important potential source of income, particularly when other sources of retirement income are under pressure from low interest rates, rising inflation and falling annuity rates."

CRITICISM: Tony Sinclair says victory showed Gills' determination

Sinclair hoping win will silence doubters

FOOTBALL

TONY Sinclair felt the way Gillingham battled to victory against Stockport County answered those critical of the side's slow start to the season.

The players have received most of the blame for the underwhelming opening, which saw the pre-season promotion favourites win just two of their first ten games.

It reached its height last week in the wake of conceding seven goals at Accrington Stanley, but the Gills responded by beating Stockport in a scrappy game at Priestfield.

Sinclair, who had to marshal the back four for ten minutes while Matt Lawrence received stitches, believes Saturday's performance showed the players' determination to climb the table.

He said: "We've had to take our criticism and swallow it. It was deserved because of the performance, but last week we got back being a team, back to the basics, back to working hard for each other, which we'll always do," he said.

"At first [when Lawrence went off] I thought Connor [Essam] was going to come straight on because we weren't sure that Matt was be able to get stitched up in time, but the boys dug in. It shows how much of a team we are and how much we'll graft for each other."

The centre-back is now desperate for the Gills to go on a lengthy unbeaten run.

He said: "Consistency is definitely the word. Hopefully now the next ten games we can just keep working hard, getting results and see where that takes us."

FOOTBALL

Hess relieved after County comeback

ANDY Hessenthaler admitted the Gillingham bench was a bundle of nerves in the closing stages of Saturday's 2-1 win over Stockport County at Priestfield.

The hosts had moved into a 2-0 lead thanks to goals from Cody McDonald and Jack Payne, but Anthony Pulis capitalised on a Tony Sinclair misjudgement to reduce the arrears with nine minutes remaining.

Hessenthaler's side held on to claim three precious league points, but the Gills boss said the closing stages seemed to take forever as County went in search of a dramatic late equaliser.

"We didn't look like conceding," Hessenthaler said. "Tony had a good game, but he's got to stop the balls coming into the 18-yard box."

"He's a bit unlucky; he nearly stopped it and it's taken a deflection and they've taken a gamble."

"We switched off and they've scored so it makes it a nervous ten minutes."

"With the five minutes added on as well, it was 15 minutes of digging in, but we won the game and that was key. We needed a response and it shows the players are together at this football club."

spoke to [after Accrington], his experience came through and you listen to players like that."

Hessenthaler preached the need for a good start in the aftermath of Accrington and he got his wish as the Gills scored inside three minutes. Cody McDonald, who looks to be improving by the game, headed home Chris Palmer's corner for his third goal in four games.

Gillingham enjoyed a good spell, but ironically did not add to their lead until Stockport established themselves. Alan Julian, preferred to Lance Cronin in goal, saved from Jake Simpson and Mansour Assoumani as the hosts looked to have squandered the initiative.

Against the run of play the Gills struck. Palmer, rapidly becoming a key player, curled in a wicked ball from the right which was chested towards goal by McDonald. County goalkeeper

Matt Glennon got a hand to it but the rebound fell for Payne, who lashed home.

Gillingham lost their way after the break, but it was partly explained by losing Lawrence for ten minutes. Stockport failed to take advantage but were handed a late lifeline when Pulis, son of former Gills boss Tony, pulled a goal back.

County were revitalised, but were unable to create a good chance to level as Gillingham wound the clock down well.

It sealed the all-important three points, but the challenge now is to convert the home form into points on the road. If the Gills are to end their 17-month winless streak away from Priestfield this weekend they will have to do it the hard way, as they visit league leaders Port Vale on Saturday.

Mos show title credentials with two victories on road

ICE HOCKEY

BY YOURMEDWAY REPORTER

INVICTA Dynamos showed why they are still title contenders this season with impressive back-to-back away wins over the weekend.

The Mos followed up Saturday's 8-1 thrashing of the Cardiff ENL Devils to beat Bristol Pitbulls 12-6 on their own patch.

Despite a much changed squad this year, the new-look Dynamos sit top of ENIHL Division 1 South after six wins from their opening eight games of the season.

Kevin Parrish's side began the weekend in Wales, traditionally a difficult place to go and not a happy hunting ground for the Mos in recent years, having lost 6-3 in both games in Cardiff last season.

However, it was a different story this time around and was as much about how the visitors started the game as anything else.

Two early goals for import signing Daniel Calitri and Anthony Lennon helped get the Mos off to a flier and they didn't hold back when the home side went a man down. Again it was Calitri who profited to give the Kent side a 3-0 lead.

The visitors made the home side pay for a further act of indiscipline with Callum Fowler netting the fourth of the first frame.

At the start of the second frame, Cardiff's inability to keep their cool became a further problem when Christopher Hart received a match penalty for a challenge on Corey

IMPACT: Daniel Calitri (right) was in great form for the Mos as they gained revenge for last season's defeats against Cardiff

Watkins – a former Devil – which left the Mos' player in need of treatment.

Calitri was on target again, six minutes into the second frame to notch up his hat-trick and the Canadian forward was on target just moments later to give his side a 6-0 lead.

Just before the intermission, the home side finally got on the scoreboard through Stephen Deacon.

If they had any designs on an amazing comeback, those hopes were evaporated when Calitri found the back of the net for the fifth time in the game to restore the Dynamos' six-goal advantage.

Fowler netted in the final minute of the game to complete the scoring and the Mos' biggest win of the season so far. They were unable to beat that on Sunday when they travelled to Bristol to play the Pitbulls, a side they beat 6-1 earlier in the season, but they still had their shooting sticks with them as Parrish's side went on to win 12-6.

The Mos are back in action at home on Sunday against Bracknell Hornets.

INJURED: Liam Weobley was forced off late on

Sin binned silly Billy costs Medway dear

Eastbourne 20 Medway 13

MEDWAY suffered their second defeat on the road to stay fifth in London South East 3.

The visitors were looking to build on last week's comprehensive 25-0 home win against Crawley, but all that good work was undone when hooker Billy Humphrey was sin binned for a moment of indiscipline.

Down to 14 men, the away side conceded three points from a penalty, which was quickly followed by a try from Eastbourne's powerful number eight.

Back to their full compliment, Medway began to gain a foothold in the game and it took some good defending from the home side to keep them at bay, until shortly before the half-time break, a good clear out from the forwards saw Sam Garofalo put winger Tony Nolan away. He finished sharply and went round behind the posts and Dafydd Ruffell converted to make the score 8-7.

The visitors were now carrying and off-loading well and as they pressed again Eastbourne conceded a penalty following good work from Liam Johnson and Huw Collings. Ruffell converted to give Medway a 10-8 half-time lead.

The second-half saw Eastbourne up their game and Medway's cause was not helped when Liam Johnson was forced to leave the field with a back injury and shortly after the powerful Liam Weobley was also forced off with a heavy knock.

The home side capitalised on a poor handling error and after Medway conceded a line-out, Eastbourne won the ball and crashed over for an unconverted try.

Eastbourne were now in the ascendancy and moments later scored another try in front of the posts to take a 20-10 lead.

The last ten minutes saw Medway dominate as they tried to force a way back into the game, but for all their possession, a single converted penalty from Ruffell was all they had to show for it as they slumped to a 20-13 defeat.

Goal-shy Chats sign ex-Stones hitman

FOOTBALL

Godalming Town 2 Chatham 0

MANAGER Paul Foley has signed much-travelled striker Leroy Huggins for his shot-shy Chatham Town side in the wake of Saturday's defeat to Godalming Town.

The ex-Maidstone and Margate man joins up with Foley and his former VCD team-mates after signing from Kent League side Erith Town, to help a Chats side that have scored just ten goals in ten games so far this season.

Foley said: "I'm delighted to welcome Leroy back home really as we know him so well and he knows most of the lads in the squad. I spoke to Leroy at the start of the year, but with the budget limitations we have we just could not match the wages Erith Town had offered him.

"There will undoubtedly be a couple more to follow Leroy as we need some characters on the pitch to put things right. We have always been patient with our players, but it's time for a change now and we have a few games until the New Year to take stock at the halfway stage.

"We are currently in discussion with two more players and expect to hear back from them in the next day or two."

Saturday's 2-0 loss at Godalming was the sixth of the season for the Chats, who were very much in the game until the home side scored. Damian Matthews netted on the hour mark and despite concerted pressure from the visitors, the points were wrapped up in the final minute through Richard Shittu.

Town take on Sittingbourne on Saturday. Kick-off at Maidstone Road is at 3pm.
